Democrat Scores Repeal of Tolls New Tariff and Watchful Waiting.

Houston, Tex., Dec. 26 .- The Wilpresidency.

The South is a land literally flowing with milk and honey; it has made one of the biggest and best crops in ness is prostrated, its credit is imare starving.

By putting raw material on the free were stationed. list and keeping the protective tariff on manufactured goods it has condemned American farmers by hundreds of thousands to peonage and has enabled the manufacturers, after getting their raw materials cheaper to charge higher prices for their goods, which they have done.

Hides were free listed and shoes have gone higher. This is true of virtually every single item similarly treated in the Administration Tariff law. The American farmer gets less for his raw materials; the American workingman pays more for the finished product and both are robbed to further enrich the protected manufacturing trusts and combines.

I understand they had everything prepared at Washington to have me indicted by a Federal grand jury and put in a Federal prison on the assumption that I meant to invade Mexico -a palpable absurdity which only men utterly ignorant of the situation could have entertained. He was accused of manslaughter. When the announcement was made that Taylor had been admitted to bail, nearly twenty prominent citizens of Island and the neighboring county volunteered to sign his bond. It was estimated that the value of the bond, when completed, was worth more than ten times the required amount.

Coroner Ambrose, of McLean county, held an inquest over the bodies of Albert Gillan and Uke Everly on Friday morning, and after hearing the evidence of a few eye witnesses to the killing, a verdict was returned by the jury to the effect that the two men came to their death at the hands of Deputy Marshal Clark Taylor, by shooting. Facts brought out at the inquest were that Gillan had a knife, but it was not open, nor in the hands of the dead man. Uke Everly, when moved, was found to have had both a knife and razor, open, and lying under him, when he fell. The general feeling in the community, while subdued, is not against the deputy marshal. It is the general opinion that the deputy acted only as the occasion demanded, as was indicated by the large number of citizens who volunteered to become bail for him.

"Nothing, except that I did not steal -- " As a bear strikes, so did the heavy arm of the invader shoot out, the hand gripping the thin shoulder like a trap.

"I warned you if you lied your punishment should be doubled. Has not the good Lord commanded Thou shalt not steal?' Thank your stars that you did not live in those days, for you would have been stoned to death. Rather, bless your luck that you have fallen into the hands of a compassionate man." With a hiss the lash fell and a shuddering scream burst from the lips of the cringing one. But from then on no sound escaped them until, at last released from the iron grip, Joe fell limply upon the frozen ground. for a moment, Harding turned away "It was the just punishment of a rogue by a just man," he muttered to his conscience.

From a shapeless, writhing heap the fallen one arose, his small eyes glinting with the deadly glare of a prodded serpent. "Whip me, you black devilyou usurer-you forecloser of widow's mortgages-you dodger of taxes-you -you-" The voice rose to an inarticulate scream of rage. "By the Eternal, I'll kill you for that-yes, murder you in cold blood." Then the first into the red eyes a look of cunning crept, the cunning that outwitted wary wild beasts and took them in his snares.

He passed rapidly through the brush until he came to a hollow log, from which he drew an ancient gun which he had stolen and hidden there years before. None knew that he possesse it, and he chuckled at his own cur ning as he plotted his details. H knew that Harding's family was away and that John would attend church was sheep-killing cur. One false word that night and return home alone after your lips and your punishment services. Nothing would be easier than to raise a window of his foe's house during his absence, and upon his return kill him at his own threshold and, leaving the weapon behind him, flee. Joe was known to never carry a weapon, and the leaving of this firearm behind, together with the forcible entry of the place, would throw the crime upon mysterious tramps or burglars. As darkness fell he prowled forth, assured himself that Harding had gone, then, prying open the window, entered and sat waiting by the low burning lamp until the sound of distant wheels reached his ears. He had not loaded his weapon yet, baving reasoned that should he be caught be-fore the act with an unloaded gun he would be deemed guilty of a far less offense than should it be loaded. But now the time had come.

From his pocket he drew some powder and poured it into the yawning muzzle, laying the bullet upon the table. Next, he must have some paper wadding for both powder and ball, and a book lay close at hand. Without looking at its cover he tore forth a handful of leaves and, selecting one, laid the others aside as he raised the first piece preparatory to crumpling it up and ramming it home upon the powder. As he did so the words upon the leaf caught his eye, and slowly he read:

"Thou shalt not kill." His hand trembled and his face grew gray. Then in the night without he heard the beat of hoofs before the barn, coupled with the loud command to "whoa," and with a gasp he clutched another sheet. Before his eyes swam the words:

"Likewise I say unto you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth."

Slowly the gun slipped from his hand, his form relaxed and he sank into a chair, his nead falling upon the table.

Five minutes later John Harding, fresh from upharnessing his team, throwing open the door, started back in fear and amazement. Then softly he approached the man who was now shuddering as he had beneath the whip, laid, the gun aside and gazed at the mutilated Bible. Upon the floor he saw the dropped pages, gathered them up, read them, then slowly understood.

For the second time that day Harding's hand fell upon the shoulder of the other, but this time it was with a parent's gentleness.

"Brother sinner," he whispered husk-

The tir can forms the bell portion of the ratle, and a short piece of broomhandle or other stick white tled round, fastes to it for a handle, This handle stic (A, Fig. 2) is se cured to the botom of the can by piercing a hole trough the tin and screwing a screwere from the in side of the can down into the end of the stick. Figure shows how the tongue of the bell rattle is prepared. The length of the tongue should be equal to the inside depth of the an. Cut a stick of this length and whittle down one end to fit the hole in the thread spool you have obtained; then screw a screw-eye into the other end (Fig. 3). Fastan the tongue n place with a piece of string, passing the string through the screw-eyes it tongue B and handle A, and tying them loosely with firm knots. This completes the rattle.

The odd-shaped rattle shown in Fig. 4 requires a short stick for handle A, and two tin cans out of which to make the wings, pieces B and C. The bottoms of the cans must be removed, and the sides opened out. Tack the pieces to opposite sides of the stick handle.

By holding the handle in the position shown in Fig. 4, and shaking from side to side, the tin wings will flap back and forth and make a splendid crackling, crashing noise.

If you have never tried pulling upon a string rubbed with resin, you cannot appreciate what a loud shrieking sound is produced in this manner.

Figure 5 shows the idea adapted to a toy that is quickly put together. Get an empty tin can, a piece of heavy wrapping paper, a piece of stout wrapping twine, and a piece of rosin. Double the wrapping paper, pierce a hole through its center, stick the end of the cord through it and tie a large knot on it (Fig. 6). Then tie the paper over the open end of the can, as shown in Fig. 6, and trim off the projecting edges. To operate, pull firmly on the string, at the same time allowing it to slide through your hand.

God grant that I the new year through

Those things which are most good and true.

May strive with heart and soul to do

God grant that I each morning start

To wear a smile all through the day,

And when my bedtime comes, to pray.

To say my prayers with folded hands

And when the bells on New Year's dawn

Proclaim the bright New Year is born.

And I awake on New Year's morn.

I pray Him whisper, low and sweet,

Lest I forget my prayer to meet.

Not all was frightful, however. In Rome slaves were waited upon by their masters and the poor seaped veritable harvests, which was but natural, since it all came from the sat-

At last this mumming came to be a menace as well as a nuisance, and the chaste Henry VIII made it a misdefineanor to wear a mask.

It was George Washington who made the day what it once was in this country. Said he: "Never forget the cheerful and cordial observance of New Year's day." The celebration grew and grew, until a generation or so ago, the scenes enacted at some receptions were simply disgraceful, soclety having progressed some since it was good form to imbibe until the imbiber quietly slid under the table.

Of late years there has been a tendency to revive visiting on the first day of the year. But it is all very informal, and every hostess knows each and every one of her guests. which was not always the case when it was the fashion to have as many as possible and any man counted one. An amusing story is told of one hostess who, in a lull, left the line and went over to the punch bowl in the back parlor, saying to a man she didn't know: "What is your name? I don't think I know you." He told her. She didn't remember it, so she asked him with whom he had come. He said he had come by himself, where upon she ordered him out. Imagine her chagrin the next day upon receiving from this man a letter she had written to a relative in a neighboring city asking that he visit there whenever he should be in the city. Also to be reminded by him that he had sent his letter of introduction and received cards, which he also inclosed. In the holiday rush she had simply torgotten the new name.

Turn the pillow at midnight, the 31st of December, and you will dream of the man you are to marry. Or let her take her hymn book to her bedroom, blow out the lamp, open the book and mark a hymn (in the dark), put it under the pillow and sleep on it. Next morning when she reads the hymn she will find its text will indicate the event of the year. On New Year's eve the Italian maiden places in one corner of her bedroom a thimble in another water, in a third ashes and in a fourth a ring. Upon waking in the morning, if she sees the ring first she will be married that year; if sie sees the water first the year will be unlucky; if the thimble, fortune will smile on her; if the ashes, she will die. On New Year's eve, if a maiden wishes to know her fate during the coming year, she must go into the open air with a psalm book in one hand and a piece of silver in her mouth. She must allow the book to fall open, and if it opens at the death psalm she will die; if it opens at the bridal psalm she will marry, and whatever else it opens to will indicate her On New Year's eve, while the clock is striking twelve, repeat three times:

Good St. Anne, good St. Anne, Send me a man as fast as you can-And you will be engaged in a year.

HANGING MISTLETOE

With Christmas Festivities.

Plant Is Surrounded With Many Superstitions in European Countries -Sign of III Omen in Some Parts of Ireland.

HE good old custom of hanging mistletoe from the ceiling at the Christmas festivities is said to have its origin in the idea that since the plant did not have its roots in the ground no part of it should ever be permitted to touch the earth.

Among the Saxons the fact that mistletoe was suspended from the roof of a dwelling intimated to the wayfarer that the hospitality of the house was at his disposal, and beneath its branches friend and stranger, vassal and lord, gathered in comradeship and toe tradition, which had its origin in the Druidical rites and the gathering of it by the archdruid with his goldsickle, merged later into a purely social symbol, and the idea of simple hospitality developed into one of merrymaking and a somewhat riotous entertainment.

The kiss of the Scandinavian goddess expanded into the custom of a kiss given for every berry that grew on the bough. Small wonder that, in spite of the mistletoe having originally existed in the odor of the sanctuary, the church came to regard it as an entirely pagan symbol and refused to allow it to participate with the lily and the evergreen in the Yuletide "The Standard Fiction Magazine

There is an ancient belief that the mistletce was the tree from which the holy cross was hewn and that after this was made the plant withered and ever afterward became a mere parasitic growth, clinging for support to other and sturdier trees.

Other stories, however, credit it with divine gifts in the healing of diseases and the expulsion of evil spirits.

ceived in a dream the intimation that by means of the plant he would be enabled to save his people from the plague which was decimating them. To celebrate their delivery he instituted the feast of Noel (new health), a midwinter holiday, which has come to be considered coincident with the

In many parts of the United Kingdom the silver berries and the graygreen leaves of the mistletoe are looked upon as anything but an emblem of good cheer; on the contrary, the plant is regarded with dread as being the bringer of ill luck and the sign of ill omen. This superstition exists both in Devonshire and in Ireland. and, strange to say, in neither of these places does the plant flourish, owing, report has it, to the fact that both incurred the displeasure of the Druids and were in consequence cursed in such a way that their soil became incapable of nourishing the sacred growth.

In the sixth book of Aeneid a lengthy description of the mistletoe is given by Virgil, who makes the Sybil describe to his hero the exact spot in hades where he will find it growing. There is little doubt that the little opaque berry is largely responsible for the mystic character it has enjoyed among the people of divers nations from the earliest historical times.

In a number of speeches it was pointed out that the war in Europe has so unsettled the export tobacco demand, which takes the bulk of the crop grown here, that neither buyers or sellers know what true values are, and that the best means for overcoming the trouble is for ust. Mr. Leach represented Ohio the farmers to hold their tobacco in their barns until they are offered acceptable prices.

Every speaker voiced the opinion that in time the market will adjust itself and that then good prices will be paid. Some advised reducing the crop the coming year and some called attention to the afct that the delivery of tobacco in poor condition

LEO FRANK GIVEN APPEAL ON HABEAS

Convicted Factory Foreman Wins Right To Take Case to Supreme court.

Washington, Dec. 28.-Justice Lamar, of the Supreme Court, to-day granted an appeal from the decision of the Georgia Federal Court, which refused to release Leo, M. Frank on a habeas corpus proceeding. Frank is under death sentence for the murder of Mary Phagan, an Atlanta factory girl.

The celebrated case now comes before the highest court in the land, a goal for which attorneys of the condemned man have been fighting for weeks and which was once previously denied them, although on another phase of the proceeding.

In the present proceeding, Frank's attorneys argued to the Federal Court of Georgia that State courts in which Frank had been convicted of murder, had lost jurisdiction over their client, because he had not had a fair trial and had been convicted in an atmosphere of violence. They asked the Georgia Federal Court to release Frank on a habeas corpus writ. Justice Newman refused and .;clined to grant an appeal to the Sapreme Court. The appeal to Justice Lamar, granted to-day, permits them to bring their case up for hearing in Washington.

Justice Lamar in a statement explaining why he had granted the appeal, said the application for the appeal presented an entirely different situation from the application for a writ of error which he had declined to grant some time ago. He cited several constitutional questions which were involved in the present appeal which, he said, the Supreme Court had never passed upon.

For those reasons, he added, there was "probable cause" for the appeal. The appeal will be docketed in the Supreme Court as soon as the clerk of the Federal District Court in Georgia forwards the necessary papers constituting a record of the proceedings in his court.

The case would be heard by the full court in the ordinary course of business in about a year and a half unless the State of Georgia should ask to have it advanced. Meanwhile Frank's execution is stayed.

Why Not Cut Expenses?

Why not practice economy in the conduct of the government instead of levying a war tax? We have no war; why pay a war tax, just because he revenues fatl off and a deficit stares us in the face because of a Free-Trade policy? Cut expenses; don't burden the people. But all the "statesmen" want a peep into the "pork barrel." A sound-headed business man would cut expenses to fit the revenue. That expenses can be cut without injuring the public service teveryone knows who is familiar wih the management of any department of the Government. From the salary lists down to the smallest items of expenditure there is entirely too much extravagance. The war tax is a Democratic confession that the Underwood Tariff is a dismal failure.-Wellsboro (Pa.) Agikator. His "Real Bigness,"....

Modern farming, published in New Orleans, presents some sugar statistics that are of timely interest. The United States 1914 beet crop is estimated at 650,000 tons, Louisiana's cane producion 225,000 tons, the Hawaiian cane crop 400,000 tons, and Porto Rico's 350,000 ons. This gives a total of 1,635,000 tons of domestic sugar in sight for the coming year against the United States' consumption demand of about 3,400,-000 tons. To make up the remainder it would require all of not more than Cuba's probable 1915 crop of 1,750,000 ons, as the apparent deficit. This means insufficiency of full supplies, and necessarily high sugar values will rule, and perhaps hold for several years to come. The farm paper proceeds to say:

In this connection the American sugar consumer may well ask himself what price level would sugar really go to if Louisiana, Hawaii and Porto Rico were not sugar producers to the extent they are? And where would the sugar be secured to feed the United States? Obvously prices would soar to unparalleled figures and a distressing condition arise from actual deprivation of this necessary article of diet. In the face of these facts, which call for a reversal of sugar legislation for the Protection of the American public in the future against possible sugar famine in years to come, we may expect President Wilson to show his real business and right the error he has made through forcing passage of the free sugar bill.

If you expect the Professor to show any "real bigness' of this sort you are doomed to disappointment. He is not built upon any large lines. He it was who forced free sugar into the Underwood Tariff bill against the advice of the ablest men of his party. He is a stubborn Free-Trade doctrinaire. As well look to see the leopard change his spots as expect Woodrow Wilson to repent or recant a single one of his Cobdenite theories. It is true, as Modern Farming insists, that the facts all call for rev of free sugar legislation. But that The Thrice-a-Week Edition reversal will never come until a Protectionist Congress and administraby local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

WAR NEWS

Germany-Assisted by light cruisers, destroyers and submarines, seven Brigish naval airmen, piloting seaplanes, made a daring attack Christmas day on the German naval base at Cuxhaven, at the mouth of for health and happiness--if, instead the Elbe. Six of the airmen returned safely, but the seventh, Commander Hewlett, it is feared, has been lost, as his machine was found off Helgoland wrecked. The action of the British navy in thus attempting to "dig out" the German fleet brought about a battle between the most modern of war machines. The British squadron, including the light cruisers Arethusa and Undaunted, which have been engaged in previous exploits on the German coast, was attacked by Zeppelins, scaplanes and submarines.

> Italy-Instructions have been sent from Rome to the Italian cruiser Catabria, now at Beirut, Syria, to assist the United States cruiser North Carolina if the necessity should arise as the result of further demonstrations aginst the departure of Europeans from Turkish territory.
